

Joyce Ferng

Joyce has been delivering complex and challenging projects across Australia, United Kingdom and Singapore for over 25 years as a Chartered Fellow professional engineer. She is currently part of the leadership team at a global consulting organisation. Joyce is an Adjunct Industry Fellow with Swinburne University and an Industry Technical Advisor to Melbourne University. She is also on the board of directors for PrefabAUS a non-profit hub advocating prefabrication in Australia.

Joyce is a firm believer of contributing back to the industry and community. She has been volunteering for the past several years with The Smith Family as part of their iTrack mentoring scheme for Year 10-12 regional students, providing them encouragement and guidance about further studies and career opportunities.

She and her husband Jude recently move to this suburb and became parishioners of Our Lady of Victories. They have been contemplating on how best to contribute to the parish community. Joyce felt it was calling to actively participate and make a difference at a strategic level when the initial opportunity to EOI for the new Parish Pastoral Council came about.

After weeks of dialogue and discernment, Joyce believes that her experiences and knowledge will be relatable and provide an added value to the diverse leadership council in bringing about the vision of an integrated, participating, and outreaching church of and for the people.
